Yesterday, The Gateway Pundit (<https://www.thegatewaypundit.com/nih-director-francis-collins-resigns-documents-expose-lied-involved-function-research-wuhan-lab/>) reported about the curious timing of NIH Director Francis Collins.

NIH Director Dr. Francis Collins on Tuesday resigned just a few weeks after do lied about his involvement (<https://www.thegatewaypundit.com/2021/09/fauci-reacts-new-foia-docs-showing-fauci-funded-construction-chimeric-coronavirus-gain-of-function-research-in-the-wuhan-lab>).

“It has been an incredible privilege to lead this great agency for more than a decade a statement. (<https://www.nih.gov/news-events/news-releases/francis-collins-director-national-institutes-health>)

“I love this agency and its people so deeply that the decision to step down was done in close counsel with my wife, Diane Baker, and my family. I am proud and accomplished. I fundamentally believe, however, that no single person should hold the position too long, and that it’s time to bring in a new scientist to lead the NIH. I’m most grateful and proud of the NIH staff and the scientific community, and your commitment to lifesaving research delivers hope to the American people and the world every day.”

“Despite the controversy studying this type of research, it always had one steady leading figure in the world of infectious diseases—Anthony Fauci,” Hilton explained. “He funded that first ferret study,” he explained, adding, “At the time, he co-wrote a Washington Post describing this research as ‘A flu risk worth taking...important insights can come from generating a potentially dangerous virus in a laboratory’.”

Despite the Obama administration’s ban on “Gain of Function” research, Hilton said Anthony Fauci gave over $3 million over the course of six years to zoologist Peter Daszak (the “bat man”) of Eco Health Alliance. Daszak first discovered the bat origin of the virus over a decade ago. According to Hilton, Peter Daszak himself subcontracted the portion of Fauci’s project to the Wuhan Institute of Virology.” Hilton asks, “The question is, how do we give it to us?”

Now, the Daily Mail (<https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-10062-scientists-planning-create-brand-new-coronavirus-leaked-proposals>) reporting that leaked proposals show US and Chinese scientists were planning to create a new coronavirus in 2018, well before the pandemic erupted.

Last month, a grant application submitted to the US Defense Advanced Research Agency (Darpa) revealed that an international team of scientists had planned to mix genetic strains to create a new virus.

The grant application was made in 2018 and leaked to Drastic, the pandemic or

This would result in a virus that had no clear ancestor in nature, a World Health Organization expert told The Telegraph. (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/world-news/2021/12/30/scientists-planned-create-new-coronaviruses-funding/>)

The expert, who asked the paper not to publish their name, said that, if such a virus was carried out, it could explain why no close match has ever been found in nature.

The proposal was rejected, and the database of viral strains at the Wuhan Institute of Virology was taken offline some 18 months later, making it impossible to check what scientists were working on.

The grant application proposal was submitted by British zoologist Peter Daszak which included Daszak EcoHealth Alliance, the Wuhan Institute of Virology, the University of North Carolina, and Duke NUS in Singapore, The Telegraph reported.

Files obtained by The Intercept as part of an FOI request to drill down the possibility and whether the US had any role in it showed that in 2014, the National Health Institute approved a five-year, yearly grant of $666,000 a year for five years ($3.3million) to EcoHealth Alliance, a US research organization, into bat coronavirus.

EcoHealth Alliance, in its proposal to the NIH, acknowledged the risks involved with the 'risk of exposure to SARS or other CoVs' among staff, who could then carry it on their clothing.

In a tweet last week, Richard Ebright, a molecular biologist at Rutgers University, said:

How many times can one grantee violate the Terms and Conditions of one NIH grant before being penalized? (Apparently, if the grantee is EcoHealth Alliance, the number is at least 10.)
